Week 1: Image-Making

August 7-11, 2017

$800*

Image-Making Within The Writing Process offers an alternative approach to teaching writing that uses collage made from hand-painted papers to construct meaning. Guaranteed to entice struggling readers and reluctant writers, Image-Making has been validated by the U.S.

Department of Education as an innovative and effective literacy model. Students craft their own quality picture books, often tied to the science or social studies curriculum, using their own portfolio of hand-painted papers. The Image-Making process can be used to address Core English Language Arts Standards in a manner that is fun and engaging. This year's Image-Making Institute will focus on Research-Based Animal Stories and Poetry integrated across the curriculum.

No art experience necessary.

Price includes workshop materials, teachers manuals, and poster.

May be taken for graduate credit at an additional cost.*

Week 2: Picturing Writing

August 14-18, 2017

$800

Picturing Writing offers a dynamic approach to teaching writing that has been proven effective for a wide range of learners. Through the use of simple crayon resist art techniques and the study of quality picture books, this innovative approach to literacy learning gives students access to multiple modalities for thinking and expressing their ideas. It allows students to enter the reading/writing process from a position of personal strength and enthusiasm. Picturing Writing can be easily integrated across the curriculum while addressing Core English Language Arts Standards. This year's Picturing Writing Institute will address a variety of genres including descriptive writing, poetry, narrative, research-based poetry, and research-based story.

No art experience necessary.

Price includes workshop materials, teachers manuals, and poster.
