

Picturing Writing & Image-Making Summer Institute

June 25-28, 2019

~ Infuse your summer program or fall studies with creativity and rigor while addressing ELA Standards ~

Picturing Writing and Image-Making Within The Writing Process are two dynamic, evidenced-based approaches to teaching writing designed to meet the needs of a wide range of learners. Through the use of simple art processes, the study of quality picture books, and an on-going Artists/Writers Workshop, this innovative approach to literacy learning gives students access to multiple modalities for developing and recording their ideas. Because pictures serve as a universal language, Picturing Writing and Image-Making provide an enticing alternative pathway into literacy learning for English learners and others who struggle with reading and writing.

Supported by best practices and over two decades of independent research, this unique evidence-based approach to literacy learning can be used to address English Language Arts Core Standards in a way that reaches a wide range of learners.

Join originator Beth Olshansky for a 4-day immersion into introductory Picturing Writing and Image-Making genre units for writing descriptive passages, poetry, and informational text using crayon resist and collage art processes. Each genre unit can be easily integrated into the science and social studies curriculum. This institute is perfect for summer school programming or starting off the next school year with engaging, effective new tools. No previous art experience necessary!

Picturing Writing: Fostering Literacy Through Art® uses simple crayon resist art processes to support students in creating artful writing in pictures and in words.

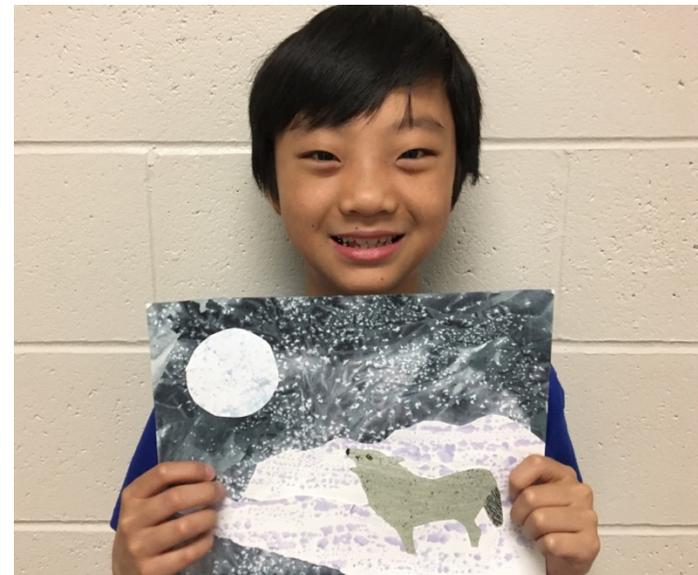

Image-Making Within The Writing Process® uses collage made from hand-painted papers to construct meaning.

I had great success using these methods with English Learners and other at-risk students. This visual approach promotes oral language skills and writing that flows directly from the pictures students have painted with care.

- Donna Garcia, Instructor of Language & Literacy, UNM

I have never in my 30 years of teaching seen first graders write like this or be so attuned to literature. This approach works for my low readers and writers; it challenges my top students; and it supports those in the middle.

- Merrilee Thissell, first grade teacher

Picturing Writing has been a godsend for our self-contained ELL classroom. We have witnessed tremendous growth in all aspects of language development.

- Kristen Beakey & Donna Papanikolau, EL Grades 3-5
